

Creatism

Discrimination against the Creatives.

Creativity and intelligence correlate only weakly, so it is possible to have creative dumb people and dull smart people. The university system filters for smart people, but not creative people, until at postdoc level, so the majority of university people tend to be smart, but only a few of them are ALSO creative, so those creatives are in the minority, and tend not to be understood by the dull majority, or “CDs” (competent dullards).