

As tech descends in scale it gets faster more complex and more intelligent. Hence at Planck tech size, the intelligence is phenomenal. So electrons could be highly intelligent, not elementary at all, and quite capable of being waves and particles at the same time, generating guide waves that they ride on like surf boards.

New paradigm, is that such elementary particles are not dumb and elementary, but intelligent, and can sense their environment. Perhaps whole civilizations live at that tiny scale.

zz